Every Android user is an explorer. They love to explore every nook and cranny of their beloved devices. This is why we share a fascination with the Android secret codes and hidden secret menus.

We are going to list a ton of dialer codes that will do just about everything you can think of regarding Android diagnostics. Manufacturers don't want certain options available to the normal users, and frankly, that's a good idea. But if you want more control and power over your Android, read on and try some of these great Android secret codes.

Smartphone manufacturers tend to keep the technical stuff away from the common users. They don't want to confuse or overburden normal people with a bucket load of options. Thankfully, both Android OS developers and smartphone manufacturers tend to keep hidden menus accessible via dialer codes.

There are some codes that are universal and are supported by almost any Android smartphone.

Some of the dialer codes are exclusive to manufacturers and may not work on all models for all carriers.

I'll be listing them all in separate sections, so if you want to get codes that work on Samsung devices, you can just get over to that section and start having fun.

I'll be listing them all in separate sections, so if you want to get codes that work on Samsung devices, you can just get over to that section and start having fun.

A point to be noted here is that some of the codes are a bit extreme. Some of them wipe your entire smartphone and factory reset it, so be cautious while inputting them. Read the description and then go on a code entering spree. That being said, let's start with some great Android secret codes, hidden menu and dialer codes.

Conclusion

These were some of the most common hidden secret codes for Android devices. I would advise caution while using these codes, though, some of them can be a bit harmful to your device.

Just like always, if you have any questions or problems regarding these codes, feel free to talk to us in the comments.

Hi Henry,

You could try a factory reset (backup your files if you do), and if that doesn't work, I think it's a bug and will hopefully be fixed in the near future. Android 6.0 has brought users a lot of issues since its release. Thanks for commenting. =-)

Hi Dotty,

Factory reset's completely wipe everything on your phone, they are usually done to clear any corrupt data or speed up a phone, among other reasons. I recommend backing up any information you don't want to lose everytime you have to do a factory reset. Do you mean that you don't have the same memory after the reset? =-)

Hi.

I have a tablet Dell Venue 7 Model 3741.

On the box it is written 8GB, HSPA, series 3000.

It has a celular chip slot.

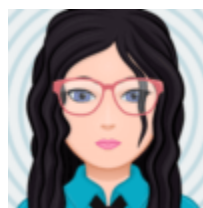

Under configuration, preferred network I can choose just 2G or 3G.

Then I accessed the hidden menu with ###4636###, it is selected WCDMA preferred.

On the drop down list, there are several options with LTE, like LTE/CDMA or LTE/GSM/CDMA auto (PRL), but any of these options are accepted, the preferred network change back to WCDMA.

Any idea about what is happening?

REPLY

Jeremiah on July 25, 2016

Enable developer options by going to settings>about phone. Look for "build number". Once found (usually close to bottom In about phone menu), repeatedly tap until confirmation message appears. Now in the settings, you'll find "developer options" right above the "about phone" you just accessed. Under dev. options, you'll find a choice for USB mode. Default setting is "Charging". Change this to Media Transfer Protocol (MTP). Try connecting to your PC after these steps. Also, Samsung has an app called Samsung Kies. It may need to be installed on the PC before it will recognize your device. Hope that helps!

Hi Judy, Wow, thanks for all of your time in helping so many of us who are trying to be Geeky! As it seems, many of us are really just "trying"!!

I need help with something that is not very typical; you may or may not be able to provide me with a solution – but it never hurts to ask, right?

I live on over a half acre property 1600 sf home in an area of California that is rural, the California Gold Country. In the exact area where my home is no company's signals work well, not even the company in the area – Golden Cellular (which was purchased by Verizon a couple years ago). If you drive about 5 blocks or so in either direction you will get a weak signal, but just enough to place a call. I have ATT and Boost Mobile. The Boost Mobile phone will place or receive a call if in the right position in the right part of the property with a single bar strength.

There is one exception, a service that actually works, NET 10, which I had found actually doesn't just work but works very well. A neighbor/friend who was over for a BBQ was freely walking around my property talking on his cellphone. I approached him and told me his services were Net 10. He is a devoted anti-tech kind of guy. An older gentleman that barely uses his TVs remote control well. He said that he was told the Net 10 system and some of their equipment can "seek out" different frequencies when placing a call. But how can it work where no other when no other phone actually has worked, ever?????

I did some research and found this is possibly true. His Net 10 was on either a Tracfone or ATT Simm. My question to you is this:

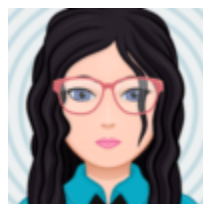

like I've described? If the Net 10 system can do it running an AI I Simm, theoretically it could work. I am not sure of the phone equipment which my friend has, but it is nothing special. Probably just a dumb phone or a tiny amount of SMARTness to it.

Thanks again for all you do to help us wanna-be-nerds!

Anthony @ Event City

Hi Anthony,

You are most welcome and it's my pleasure to be able to help as much as possible. From what you described I don't think there is any code that can do that. It sounds like a service issue and that something only the companies can offer. If you can, you can try maybe getting a second line just for when you are in those areas with bad service, I mean, a second line just like the one your friend has. =-) Thanks for commenting.

My LG G3 seems to only work with a few of the codes listed above. The system dump mode and ATT specific hidden menu are the biggest needs of mine. My system data is taking up 3.8 gb at the moment and I would really like to reduce that since it only has 8 gb of memory. Any suggestions?

The service manual for the LG-D802 says that the Hidden Menu can be accessed by 3845#*802#. This is the menu that gives access to the hardware test menus. On my Nexus 5 (which is labelled on the motherboard as a D802) this does not work and all the variations that I have tried on this code using 821,800,980.801 and 821 instead of the 802 also do not work. I want access to the testing menu because of a no signal problem that has not responded to the usual measures and which I suspect is a problem with the U2004 RF Transceiver chip. Does anyone know the correct code to access these menus? The ##4636## code works but does not give access to the hardware test features. After various firmware changes in an attempt to solve the problem the phone is back to stock 6.0.1 and is not rooted.

Hi Eva,

Your GPS problems could be because mMaps software needs an update, location setting is disabled, your phone's software needs an update, temporary network outage, GPS is blocked by a third-party accessory such as a case or cover. You could try a soft reset or you can verify some network settings especially on the location services. Let me know how this works out for you. Thanks for commenting. =-)

What codes are you trying to use? Some codes are especially for a particular brand, and will not work on other devices. Also, some manufacturers have disabled these kinds of codes so they won't work. It's all about trying and see if it works.

Am using a HTC sensation XL with beatstudio x315e. It works only on 2g (E) network on browsing...once changed to 3g, the network bar disappears completely, and then the phone automatically selects 2g and then the network appears. Please, what can I do to resolve this issue. Meanwhile, same sim in other phones displays 3 and 4g network. Life's too short to be using a boring 2g phone...

the codes work on some devices and not others, so it's hard to say with certainty that they will work. As for rooting, all you are doing it gaining access to the root files, not adding features. if they aren't available to begin with, odds are you won't find them by rooting.

Thanks

It should let you into the HTC diagnostics menu. There is a button test option you can try.

Some phones and carriers do not allow the codes to work. If there is a specific diagnostic function you are looking for, maybe I could help you find a way to get that information.

The network issue could be a number of things... Is it unlocked for your carrier? Is the SIM card active? Is the antenna functioning in the phone?

As to the coded not working, it's hard to say which ones will and will not work. Carriers and manufacturers do not always allow every or any of the codes to work on each model.

Hi I have a Samsung Galaxy Note 4 through Sprint and I am trying to put my Verizon service on it I have talked to both Verizon and Sprint Verizon's end is good and their SIM card is working and Sprint give me the unlock code that I'm supposed to enter so the Verizon SIM card will work in a Sprint phone but when I put the Verizon SIM card in a notification pops up saying invalid SIM card and when I go to select s nothing happens it's just stuck is there anything I can do that you know of to make my Sprint phone work with my Verizon service??

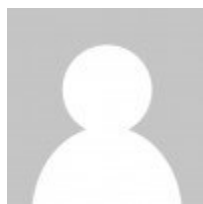

JOA

Trevor on November 15, 2016

moving from carrier to carrier can be tricky. I know with my unlocked phone there was a code they needed to put into their system to make it work on their end.

Also, you can try dialing *228 after you put the Verizon SIM card in. I believe that will register it to the towers and system.

I can't get into my zte t610 due to Google account verification. I am having trouble remembering or resetting my password. I only have access to the emergency dialer and when I enter a code it says I need to enter an emergency number. How do I overcome this and is there a code that will help erase the Google verification account or even just a code that will allow me to access the phones settings menu??

If you do not have the gmail account login for the phone, there really isn't a good way to do it. I believe at this point you will need to master reset the phone if there is no way for you to remember the login information.

the codes are device and sometimes carrier specific. you didn't mention your model phone, carrier, or even the brand, your best bet is to drop the brand, model, and carrier with the code you are looking for into a search engine to see. You may also need the version of the phone.

When I try the code for "Format and Factory Reset" – *2767*3855# – it tries sending out some kind of SMS but that fails and the error message I receive is – "Connection Problem or Invalid MMI Code".

Any idea why this (and a few others with the *xxx...# – starting with a single star and ending with a single pound) do not work and why it tries sending out some kind of sms?

Oh if this can help – I use cellone as my provider.

It could be a carrier limitation. Does the carrier there have a 3g or LTE option? I know here in the US the carriers limit the data for some devices or plans. Try looking into your SIM card options to see if you might have something not allowing 3g or higher. I don't think it would matter, but your phone looks like it's a dual SIM phone, does it make a difference to put the SIM in the other slot?
